

Ham radio is dying! No it's not, it's evolving

I've heard ham radio is dying since as far back as I can remember. It's one of those common sayings you always hear. Like, "get off my lawn," and "kids these days." But is it true? Is there any evidence to support this? Let's take a closer look.

Ham radio is dying! No it's not, it's evolving